The draft document entitled Town of Cornwall Land Use and Development Regulation has been on the Town website and at the Town Clerk's office for about a week. Additional copies were distributed at the public meeting. The unified document includes information about the authority and purpose of Town land use and development regulations, zoning district regulations, general requirements that apply to all development, specific use standards, a section on administration and enforcement, and information about zoning permits and development review. There is an additional section with detailed definitions of terms used in the document.

The public comment period for this draft ends May 1, 2018. Several citizens asked questions and made comments regarding the substance as well as the formatting of the proposed regulations. The questions were answered by members of the CPC and by Sarah Pelkey and David Raphael of LandWorks. Holly Noordsy encouraged citizens to continue to send further questions and comments to LandWorks by email or deliver to the Town Hall by May 1.
